Important Meeting of Capital City League.

UMPIRE HOFFMAN LOSES JOB

Owing to Vast Number of Kicks Board of Managers Unanimously Votes to Relieve Him of the Job as with St. Stephen's Team,

By N. T. WORLEY, &

The Capital City League managers met at Sixth street and Louisiana avenue northwest last night to transact important business. The managers of the Cornell Company, Aloysius Club, Navy Yard, Pumping Station, and Midway nines were present. St. Stephen's was not represented. In the absence of President James A. O'Shea, Vice President Ross J. Blosser took the chair and presided during the meeting.

After roll call, the board of managers got down to business, and one of the first steps they took was to raise the suspension of Jack Carr and George Cornell who were put out of the game indefinitely on June 18 for coming to blows in the Cornell-Aloysius game at Capital City Park. The board was unanimous in voting to lift the suspension. Another important bit of business transacted was the authority given the manager of the St. Stephen's tea mto place the Kenilworth club in the Capital City League, either as a team from that place or under the name of St. Stephen's, consolidating it with the Georgetown club. St. Stephen's, owing to the fact that it is made up largely or players who play on two or three clubs, has not been able to muster a full nine lately, and the action of the league was in line with a suggestion advanced by the manager of the St. Stephen's outfit. To escape the suffocating heat of town in the evening, it is only necessary to board a trelley and be speeded out to Chevy Chase Lake, a spot that apparently always "stands in" with the weather man. It is never too warm out there, for one takes in the various amusements with zest, and one can dance throughout the evening without discomfort, take a turn at bowling, row on the lake, or amuse him or herself at the many other recreation places.
